> After the trial of "Zionist spies" of America, led by Lozovsky and Molotova, had just been carried out, Stalin saw Zionist conspirators everywhere. Such a conspirator in his eyes was every Jew, regardless of whether he was a communist or not, moreover, every Russian communist leader was such a conspirator, if he is married to a Jewess. Stalin extended his "genealogical tables" to the second and third generations in the genealogy of the communists, looking for Jewish grandparents or grandchildren from them. So, Khrushchev had a granddaughter from a Jewish mother, Beria had a mother, allegedly a Georgian Jewess, Malenkov had a daughter married to a Jew.

>When Stalin, reminding the plenum of the Central Committee of the "Leningrad affair", the "Zionist affair", the "Georgian affair", began to take apart the members of the Politburo by the bones, delving into their historical, political and genealogical sins, it became clear: out of 11 members of the Politburo, 5 turned out to be Jewish relatives (Molotov, Malenkov, Voroshilov, Khrushchev, Andreev), one was a Jew (Kaganovich), one was a "half-Jew" (Beria), two were involved in the "Leningrad mafia" (Kosygin and Mikoyan; the latter's son was married to Kuznetsov's daughter), only one person turned out to be pure - the harmless and colorless Bulganin.
